Eugene Corr, director | Ghost Town to Havana is a heartbreaking, funny and inspirational story that follows the lives of two extraordinary youth baseball coaches: Nicolás Reyes, a 61 year old Afro-Cuban coaching in Havana, and Roscoe Bryant, a 46 year old African-American coaching in the troubled Oakland neighborhood called Ghost Town, and what happens when these men bring their two teams together.

The evening begins with a community activity or panel discussion at 6:15, the film screens at 7:00, and is followed by a Q&A with the filmmaker.
